If we instill into your hearts any reverence for Sewanee's Past; any determination to make more Glorious Sewanee's Future; any vital interest in Sewanee's Present, then our sole purpose is accomplished, our work is done.

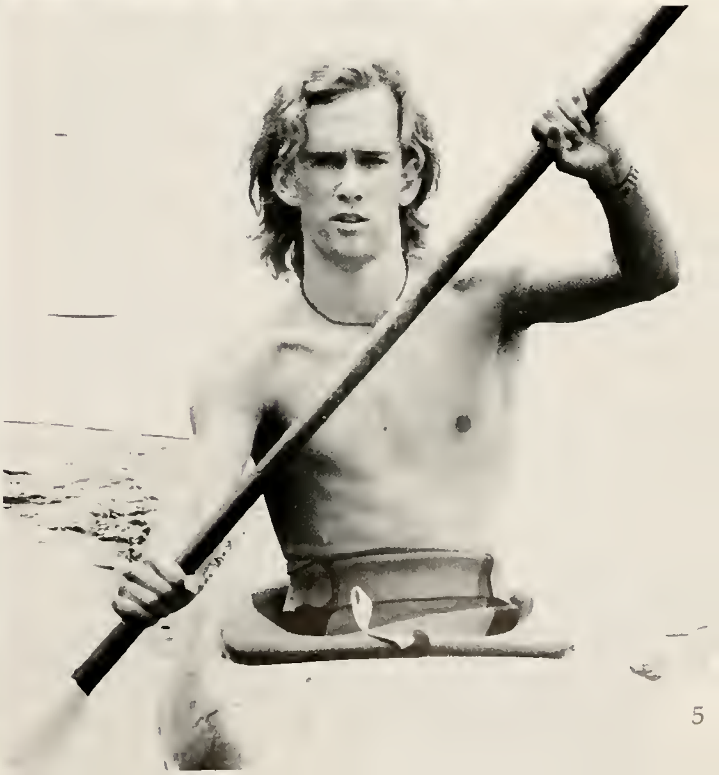
VI. Conclusion

The true Sewanee is found in each individual who enters her gates. She presents her traditions, ideas, and goals evident in one hundred and thirty- five years of hard work, love, and optimism to anyone willing to take time to revel in her beauty. The student takes what is given to him by the grace of the past, adds his own questions and ideas, and leaves behind a new Sewanee for the students of the future.

This 95th volume of the University's Cap and Gown seeks to capture glimpses of Sewanee's past and present so that you, its readers, may better remember in days to come what Sewanee meant to you, where you left your mark, and where you are going now. We hope that in these pages you find the thoughts you will want to recall when you take time to reminisce. But even here you must seek to make Sewanee your own, for no one can do it for you. Circle your favorite professor, write in the margins, and press flowers between its pages; remember the Sewanee you know.



The life on this mountain top rings just as true as in the days of yore, the trees are just as sweet and green, the rocks are just as firm and faithful, and the people just as devoted and consecrated as when the Walsh and the Hoffman and the Quintard Memorial as yet were not. Those dark days demanded heroic deeds and the heroes were to perform them; but we are not the less incapable of heroism, because a brighter sun is shining in our sky. Our energy and devotion have not so romantic a stage setting, but they have just as important a part to play in the working of our academic drama. —Cap and Gown, 1900

Moving Through

So into the fog we dance
in the days
and herald our presence on this mountain
with a touch to the roof

Days numbered for some in their final stretch still not muting
those high expectations of a first Sewanee spring
for others

Captive on this plateau
in a religious fervor dictated not by the church but a heart
charged by the royal red crest of the Pileated Woodpecker
often seen tapping out the beat we march to

Even the pockmarked faces of sandstone
ridges ripple with excited blows of adrenaline
from delicately placed fingertips
and personal journeys feel their way winding under an over-hand
fat with stalactiform
spears of ice
turned on by the same energy
that lights
the fog frozen valleys in the early mornings celebrated

—Bachman Smith, 1992

Morgan's Steep
The mountain's edge is an altar of stone,
So grey and columned and grand;
With garlands of green and lichens o'ergrown,
With fringes of purple and gold.
The trees, far below in priestly array,
Bring their ephods of scarlet sheen,
And far beyond, in the valley away,
Is the purple and amethyst land.

YEA, SEWANEE'S RIGHT!

Gothic sandstone buildings connected haphazardly causing students to loose themselves somewhere between Carnegie and Guerry periodically. Tattered gowns with traditions of their own proclaimed on embroidered shoulders. Fog which descends in October and lifts, if we're lucky, sometime in March revealing long-obscured towering trees. A creative assortment of dogs willing at anytime to accompany students on a walk or relieve him of a burdensome ice cream cone. Angels set free by a tap on the roof. SPO, a noun, an adjective, and a verb and where you always run into the one professor you were trying to avoid. A dark Pub with soap operas, movies, free popcorn, and Shirley. Bands from Nine to One or until Sewanee Vice drops in. Breslin's quarterly chimes. Comprehensive exams which bring four year's study into perspective and reap havoc upon every senior. Gailor food and dog hierarchy - we all know which is more entertaining. Vodka Red I's every Party Weekend. Periodic Voice Mail checks in Night Study when you should be studying. Freshmen studiously avoiding the Fire Hall. Arcadians leading perspectives around campus, sun, rain, sleet, or snow, with a nod and smile for everyone-cheerful at all costs. Thursday night kegs from Nine to Eleven somewhere on campus. Truck Stop study sessions with the Student's Special: chicken strips, gravy, biscuits, and hash browns with cheese for $4.40. An honorary dress code ranging from three piece suits to cut-offs with ties. Falstaff caps that make more and more sense as the night wears on. Lawn mowers and leaf blowers whenever you try to sleep; be it Six in the morning or Four in the afternoon. Pretzels and Louisiana coffee with registration. And hot tea in case of snow. Purple, gold, and white wildflowers nestled around settled stone bridges in Abbot's Alley. Shenanigan's latticed ceiling, flower-pot lamps, melodious blues, and good, cold beer. Backpacks and bicycles and hiking boots seven days a week. Bow ties and hats at Lawn Parties before football games. Dodging games of Frisbee Golf while crossing Manigault Park. The Bacchus Mobile and its revolving yellow beacon emerging from the mist to rescue a wandering student. Rock climbing at Morgan's Steep. Sunsets at The Cross. Kilts and capes at football games. Sewanee ghosts haunting every hall. Page after page after page of Reserve Reading and subsequent fifty-cent-per-hour fines. Thousands of daffodils everywhere. Sunday morning Carillon Concerts reminding us of All Saints and class tomorrow.

The Ballad of the Headless Gownsman (1909)

The hour was not of Thursday night,
Nor yet of Friday morn;
But 'twas the time when night is dead,
The morning still unborn.

And I was slowly walking on,
Affected by the gloom.
Augustine's Chapel, on my right,
Seemed truly 'Gustine's tomb.

There was a man in front of it,
A Townsman, still as dead.
I looked at him—I looked again,
My God! He had no head!

It was a man without a head;
He wore a draping gown.
One hand was pointing straight at me,
The other pointed down.

And then I heard a hollow voice,
I saw no human face,
Yet words I heard, and they were real,
They came from empty space.

In dreadful tones the Spectre spoke:
"I've waited long for you,
They took my head—I need one, and I think that yours will do."

Two bony hands reached out at me,
O God they seized my head!
And I, till now so stiff and stark,
All limp and loose—fell dead.

Came then a dream—I saw a stream,
Of boiling blood 'twas full.
I stood alone, in a boat of bone,
'Twas made of a monster skull.

The current rushed me onwards 'tween
The sun-lit, shining shores,
All full of ghastly, grinning heads
Piled high in countless scores.

I looked askance, in horror, at
The endless, awful scene.
I heard sweet, magic music notes,
With discords in between.

And then I woke—I lay all limp.
'Twas just breaking at dawn.
I raised my hands and felt, and felt,
O God! My head was gone!

He had it, he had taken it,
That demon in the gown.
I cursed him—then I heard a laugh;
In mockery resound.

So on each Thursday night in June,
The day and month I died,
I promenade the Chapel yard,
I'm led by an unseen guide.

I'm waiting, and I'm waiting, and
Some night, 'tween one and nine,
There's sure to come, unthinkingly
A man with a head like mine.

I'll charm him with a magic spell,
I'll make him stand and stare.
And then I'll steal his head away
And leave him lying there.

And he will then rove 'round at night
As I, without a head;
While I shall fly, far, far away
To live with the happy dead.

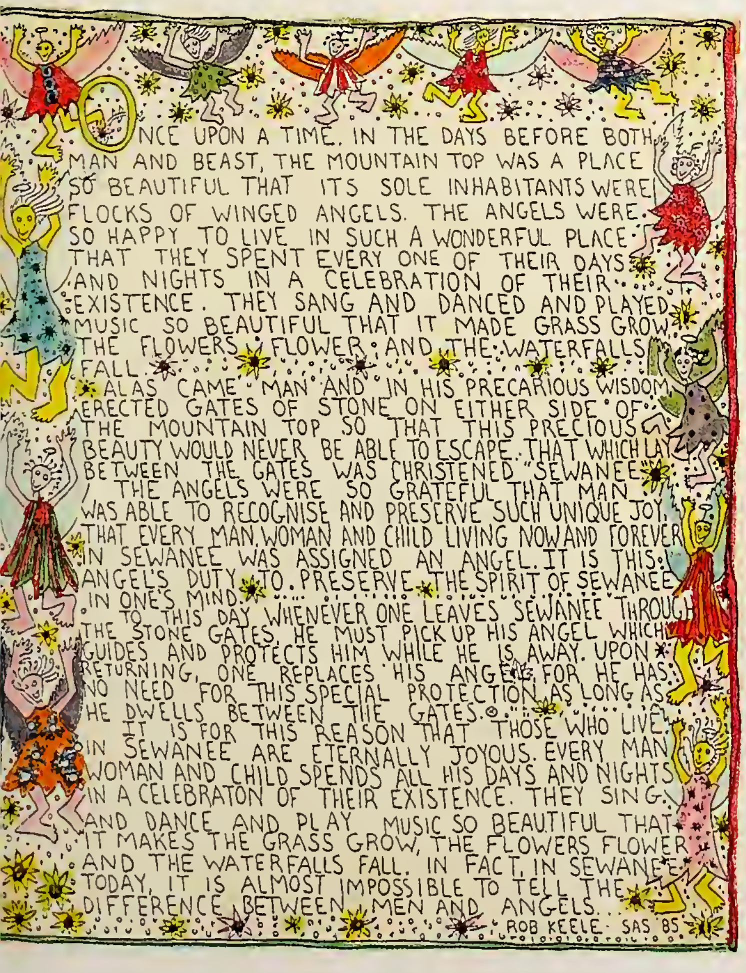
BUSH QUAYLE 92

The University has not taught the crassness of the world beyond, for that is not its function; but is has given what it should have given: a way of understanding. And for those who share in this understanding the experience is a very real one.

—Beeler Brush, 1968



ONCE UPON A TIME. IN THE DAYS BEFORE BOTH MAN AND BEAST, THE MOUNTAIN TOP WAS A PLACE SO BEAUTIFUL THAT ITS SOLE INHABITANTS WERE FLOCKS OF WINGED ANGELS. THE ANGELS WERE SO HAPPY TO LIVE IN SUCH A WONDERFUL PLACE THAT THEY SPENT EVERY ONE OF THEIR DAYS AND NIGHTS IN A CELEBRATION OF THEIR EXISTENCE. THEY SANG AND DANCED AND PLAYED MUSIC SO BEAUTIFUL THAT IT MADE GRASS GROW, THE FLOWERS FLOWER, AND THE WATERFALLS FALL.

ALAS CAME MAN AND IN HIS PRECARIOUS WISDOM, ERECTED GATES OF STONE ON EITHER SIDE OF THE MOUNTAIN TOP SO THAT THIS PRECIOUS BEAUTY WOULD NEVER BE ABLE TO ESCAPE. THAT WHICH LAY BETWEEN THE GATES WAS CHRISTENED "SEWANEE"

THE ANGELS WERE SO GRATEFUL THAT MAN WAS ABLE TO RECOGNISE AND PRESERVE SUCH UNIQUE JOY, THAT EVERY MAN, WOMAN AND CHILD LIVING NOW AND FOREVER IN SEWANEE WAS ASSIGNED AN ANGEL. IT IS THIS ANGEL'S DUTY TO PRESERVE THE SPIRIT OF SEWANEE IN ONE'S MIND.

TO THIS DAY WHENEVER ONE LEAVES SEWANEE THROUGH THE STONE GATES, HE MUST PICK UP HIS ANGEL WHICH GUIDES AND PROTECTS HIM WHILE HE IS AWAY. UPON RETURNING, ONE REPLACES HIS ANGEL, FOR HE HAS NO NEED FOR THIS SPECIAL PROTECTION AS LONG AS HE DWELLS BETWEEN THE GATES.

IT IS FOR THIS REASON THAT THOSE WHO LIVE IN SEWANEE ARE ETERNALLY JOYOUS. EVERY MAN WOMAN AND CHILD SPENDS ALL HIS DAYS AND NIGHTS IN A CELEBRATON OF THEIR EXISTENCE. THEY SING AND DANCE AND PLAY MUSIC SO BEAUTIFUL THAT IT MAKES THE GRASS GROW, THE FLOWERS FLOWER AND THE WATERFALLS FALL. IN FACT, IN SEWANEE TODAY, IT IS ALMOST IMPOSSIBLE TO TELL THE DIFFERENCE BETWEEN MEN AND ANGELS.

Inferno Or Just Plain Hell?

A great stone archway, with some writing above, gave entrance to the place. Stone steps led up to it, and a massive doorway, through which one might enter, yawned darkly.

Timidly we approached it, for we had heard of its terrors from afar. And, although no one was to be seen from the outside, a tremendous turmoil and confusion sounded from within. Seeing no one to bar our way, slowly we slipped inside the door, but at once almost wished we had not done so, for the noises which had sounded so terrifying from without were now increased ten-fold. Shrieks, cries, groans, every noise ever known to issue from human throats fell upon our ears at once, as well as many strange and undefineable sounds which were strange to us. Clicks, and pops, and gurglings, as well as the noise of human throats, resounded through the corridor.

A strong odor smote our nostrils, an odor as of that stuff which cheers men's souls, but somehow stronger and almost terrifying.

Above, someone was banging on doors; noises, cries, odors, yells, people running and falling, sounds of blows, all created a horrible sort of medley that filled us with fear.

We turned to flee. A snake glided across our path. We whirled around, and sought to run the other way, and saw an apparition of six dogs, one after the other, walk across our path, all seemingly just alike.

Quaking with fear at the terror of this madhouse, we darted into a room, our breath coming in quick, terrified pants. There before our eyes, in the room, sat a strange sort of parrot, which began to laugh like mad and curse at the top of its crazy voice.

With one jump, we were out the window and tearing across the lawn; behind us we heard a crash as a door fell under strong blows, and the breaking of glass as some poor fellow went through a window.

As we passed the door through which we had entered we saw the name written above it, "Cannon Hall".

Quivering and shaking at the remembrance of the hell that lay within, we ran and ran, off into the night.

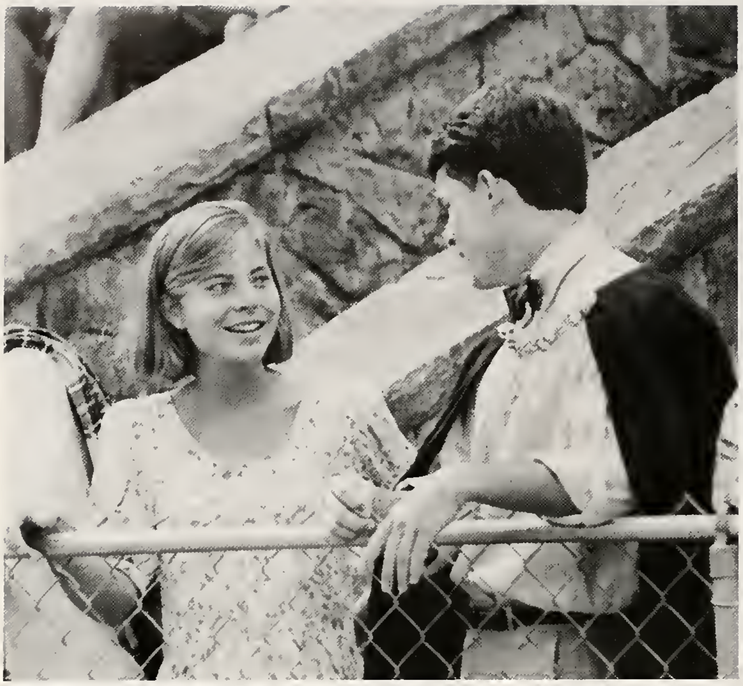
"Anecdote of the Jar"

Wallace Stevens

I placed a jar in Tennessee.
And round it was, upon a hill.
It made the slovenly wilderness
Surround that hill.

That wilderness rose up to it,
And sprawled around no longer wild.
The jar was round upon the ground
And tall and of a port in air.

It took dominion everywhere.
The jar was gray and bare.
It did not give of bird or bush,
Like nothing else in Tennessee.



Ghosts: Reunion 1992, SMA

It was evening on the mountain,
And ghosts were gathered there;
Some have said that ghosts are bred
Upon that mountain's air.

But ghosts are called by longing
For the shadows of their past,
And a mountain made of memory
Holds those shadows fast.

Memories are not simple:
They are complicated things;
And within the mortal hearts of ghosts,
Memories turn to dreams.

These dreams are most important
As time begins to pass,
For it's dreams that live forever
And ghosts that do not last.

Young men see the lightning
And the flash beyond the cloud,
But old men hear the thunder,
Like a whisper growing loud.

Thus they seek the mountain
By afternoon or so,
And in the stones of retrospect,
They find a golden glow.

Then on that last parade to chapel,
They will not face the night
But see the glint of sabers
In the Sunday morning's light.

Down from Quintard once again
To All Saints' open door,
They will march for one last time
And then shall march no more.

They will not come with muffled drums
On aging, shuffling feet,
But as they were within their time
To take their final seat;

For on that last parade to chapel,
No trumpet sounds retreat —
And until the last man marches in,
There'll be ghosts upon the street.

SEWANEE 14
VANDERBILT 13
1915

Bells announce the day.
A gownsman slices through the fog,
Billowing black over grass and gravel.

Red and white, a double line
Behind the glinting cross;
A procession to the heart of our home.

A sun-soaked afternoon spent praising famous men
With a furry backrest under a ancient tree.

The sun reluctantly slips behind a ridge,
And in a last, defiant burst of brilliance
Ignites the stone.

TRAINER

My eyes never forget the beauty of this place. The marvelous way that the light glitters through the trees to cast long bluish shadows, the clean air of the morning, the rose of the sunset. The buildings, made of hand-hewn stone that seems to push up through the ground, bring with them the very thing of which they are made stand surrounded by the magnificent, ever-embracing trees. When I paint the buildings, as huge as they seem, I see them as always, always dwarfed by the full, fat trees that embrace them in soft pastels in Spring, rich greens in Summer, brilliant orange in Fall, and naked lavender in Winter. What more could a person want?

The Sacristans' Guild

The All Saints' Chapel Sacristans' Guild was established in 19-- to assist the clergy in their preparation for all services of vorship held in All Saints' Chapel. Nominated by out-going seniors each spring, newly elected Sacristan-Candidates enter semester long period of training and are usually inducted into the Guild the following Fall. The role of Sacristan is best bserved on Sundays during Term, at the famous Festival Service of Lessons and Carols each Advent, and during Holy Veek in the Spring.

Beneath the thin skin of appearences new life and old wounds form a tangled web of need and wealth. * Simplicity and complexity companion desire and persistance to address what appears to be a problem yet proves to be a solution. * Each of us anticipate to give something of ourselves, we are struck by the silent lessons learned. * The echo of laughter and tears will ring forever in our ears even though that place in life where memories serve as a wind on the doors we've opened. * Together we have built a bridge that we must now cross in order to face the next challenge: to meet our neighbors face to face and extend a hand in humble gratitude for the opportunity they have allowed us to know.

— Kaethe Hoeling, class of 1994

Outreach

There are tremendous needs as well as opportunities to "make a difference" in this world; to experience some kind of outreach work not only at the local level but in the larger community which lies beyond the gates of the Domain adds to ones' personal spiritual journey and enhances the academic disciplines we choose.

Student commitment to social responsibility has always been a large part of the University's history and tradition. Experience has taught us that in serving others, often times we, too, are served, and ... not only are the lives of others transformed, but, so are ours as well.

When we begin to see those who are in need as brothers and sisters, rather than as a civic project, we will begin to see one world, in which we are all servants. And when we begin to see one world and the interdependence we share in God's delicately balanced creation, we may be ready to look at the more difficult systemic questions that keep this world divided up between the haves and the have-nots, the powerful and the powerless.

The Rev. Charles Kiblinger
Former Chaplain of the University

Fall

Outreach concentrates its efforts in the Fall on one large housing project located about 15 miles outside of Sewanee near Tracy City, Tennessee in an area known as part of Appalachia. Students and staff built a bathroom and bedroom for a woman who had been using an outhouse for 20 years and who had her water piped in from an old coal mine. She owns her land and works 10 and 12 hour shifts at a local shirt factory.

Students participated in all phases of the construction. It began during the Pre-SOP (Sewanee Outing Program), was worked on every Saturday during the semester, twenty-one students spent their "Fall Break Outreach Trip" there and the projects was finished right before Christmas. She was very grateful for all the work on her home and has been overjoyed about the improvements in her dwelling.

Christmas

During Christmas Break 12 students and 2 staff spent a week in the South Dale County, Florida area helping with relief effort in the wake of Hurricane Andrew. We went prepared to assist in home repair work, but were assigned to canvass several neighborhoods door to door to help put those people in need with the proper resource agency such as FEMA (Federal Emergency Management Agency), Red Cross or I.C.A.R.E. (Interfaith Coalition for Andrew Recovery Effort).

The most startling part of our survey work was seeing what the conditions were like compared to what our expectations had been. It was now six months after the hurricane and people were still living in homes with partial roofs with no repairs even begun. We would sit down with people and just listen to their stories about the night the storm hit or about how a roofing contractor had defrauded them. The media covers the initial impact but doesn't convey the long term implications of such a disaster.

Spring

Thirty-one students and staff participated in this year's Jamaica outreach mission trip during spring break. There were three main sites in Kingston where we worked: an elementary school where one group painted the second in a series of art murals begun by the previous year's outreach participants; there were various tasks performed at a shelter for homeless elderly people operated by Mother Teresa's Missionaries of Charity Order. Besides just being with these people, which is a ministry in and of itself, students shaved many of the men and fed several who were unable to do that themselves. The third site was a vo-tech school for underprivileged young women where we worked hand in hand with the Jamaican students sewing banners and repairing desks.

The last day in Kingston was spent in Riverton, a community where approximately 5000 people live and subside around a garbage dump. We had a "field day" there with about 200 children where we played games and sang.

The feelings and emotions one experiences in a third world country for just a ten day period are life changing. Spending the one day in Riverton was a revelation that amongst this awesome poverty these kids were no different than any other kids anywhere in the world, they jump rope just as fast, they laugh just as much, and they scream just as loud.

Order of Gownsmen

The Order of Gownsmen is made up of students who have achieved the required grade-point average and are entitled to wear the academic gown. The order advises the Student Assembly and strives to promote and maintain the spirit, tradition, and ideals of the University. The body has legislative power through its appointment power to student and faculty committees and its ability to investigate any concerns of the student body. This year the Order came under strong pressure to change its name to the Order of the Gown. After many heated debates all over campus, the Order of the Gownsmen voted to maintain its long-revered title. Tilghman Broaddus, President.

Pi Sigma Alpha

Pi Sigma Alpha is the national political science honorary society; its Gamma Sigma chapter at The University of the South was reactivated in March 1992, having been founded initially in 1958. Pi Sigma Alpha works to advance the understanding of public policy. During 1992-3 Pi Sigma Alpha at Sewanee sponsored an open panel in December on graduate study in the fields of political science, international relations, and law, and arranged for speakers on the presidency.

Alpha Epsilon Delta

Alpha Epsilon Delta is the national premedical honor society, and the Tennessee Epsilon chapter was installed at Sewanee in 1984. Its purpose is to reward excellence in premedical scholarship. Active membership is open to juniors and seniors and is based upon academic record and participation in the pre-medical club. The officers of AED also serve as officers of the pre-medical club. Senior members hold sessions to advise students regarding the MCAT and application to medical school. The group also sponsors the Red Cross blood drives each semester. Five members were inducted in 1992: Jay Christopher, Anne Grimsley, Hayes McDonald, Doug Murray, and Carl Thornblade.

The Economics & Business Club

The Economics and Business Club is an active group of students who have a common interest in the economy. Our goal is to raise Sewanee's level of awareness of issues concerning the state of the economy. Although largely economics majors, we encourage anyone to join that shares our interest in the business world. In fact, this year we have changed our name to the Economics and Business Club to do just that.

Sigma Pi Sigma

Sigma Pi Sigma is the only national physics honor society, and the Sewanee chapter was founded in 1958. Although memberships has waxed and waned over the last 35 years, the society tries to maintain an active role in the Physics department by cooperation with the other physics majors and the professors. Sigma Pi Sigma's activities include sponsoring various physics speakers, coordinating breakfast lectures, and organizing other departmental activities.

Presently, the group consists of three members: President — Carla Finch, Vice-President — Morey Lent, and Secretary/Treasurer — Trey Dobson.

La Maison Francaise

Founded in 1973, the French House is the campus center for French cultural activities. All the programs are open to the students and the members of the community who share with the eight residents an interest in French culture. The main activities sponsored by La Maison Francaise are the French Table, every Monday in the B.C., the "Causette", a weekly opportunity for French conversation, and "Salut la France!", our one-hour radio show on WUTS. In addition, the director of La Maison carries out a program of events for each semester, such as lectures, film projections, the Fall formal and other get-togethers.

Sewanee Volunteer Fire Department

SVFD is an organization composed of both students and community who provide fire protection, mountain rescue, assistance to the SEMS, and set up helicopter emergency landings.

Bacchus

The 8-year old Sewanee BACCHUS Chapter is a part of a 600 chapter international organization dedicated to "Boost Alcohol Consciousness Concerning University Students." BACCHUS is not a "grandmother organization" trying to keep students from drinking, but rather encourages the responsible use of alcohol. BACCHUSmobile, Bartender Training, and the BACCHUS breakfast are programs designed to do this. Other programs include Pledge Alcohol Awareness Sessions, "Tie One on the Christmas Tree," National Alcohol Awareness Week, and the "Safe Spring Break" campaign. Because of these programs, our chapter received the International Award for Excellence in an Outstanding Chapter and Chris Asmussen received Outstanding Advisor at the International General Assembly in Pittsburg, PA, this November. Over Spring Party Weekend, the chapter hosted the Area 8 (Alabama, Mississippi, Tennessee) Conference that was even attended by BACCHUS members from schools outside our area. Executive Committee Members are: (1st Sem.) Darcy Baird — Pres., Josh D'Alemberte — V. Pres., Erin Wilson — Sec., Seth Eaker — Tres., Sara Kambouris — BACCHUS mobile Coord. (BMC), and Katie Hensley — Bartender Coord. (BTC). 2nd Sem.: Seth Eaker — Pres., Josh D'Alemberte — VP, Katie Hensley — Sec., Kawanna Resse — Tres., Erin Wilson — BMC, and Chad Mellow — BTC.

Big People for Little People

Big People for Little People is an organization that allows college students to become friends and role models for students at Sewanee Elementary School. During the school year, college students spend two hours a week with their "little friends" doing a variety of activities. The program encourages this quality time between college students and elementary students by providing activities throughout the year. Fraternity and sororities also help to support the program by sponsoring the annual Halloween party, the Christmas party, and the Easter party/Field Day and movie days at the pub.

Members: Jennifer Warren, Tim Worall, Keenan Wilburn, Michael Woodry, Atricia Woods, Kaethe Hoeling, Dennis Cook, Jennifer Griffen, and Carla Finch.

The Tempest

Sewanee Shakespeare Festival Committee

The Sewanee Shakespeare Festival, a two-week series of plays, workshops, movies, and lectures, is designed to bring a fuller appreciation of Shakespeare to the entire campus and community.

Chairmen: Amy Craig, and Jennifer Wood. Treasurer: Jeannette Warren. Members: James Acken, Elizabeth Ariail, Tracy Bell, Abbey Christman, Chris Cudabac, Kristina Erlewine, Kevin Hiers, Richard Hlatki, Katherine Kellogg, Morey Lent, Elizabeth Mallonee, Megan Montgomery, Anson Mount, Paul Randall, Lillian Rice, Nancy Beth Spencer, Charles Temple, Karl Ulbrich.

Sounds of Silence

SOS provides opportunities to use sign language by participating in dinners/lectures presented by parents of deaf children, a silent lunch once a week, a trip to the Tennessee School for the Deaf, and an end-of-the-year party involving the deaf community.

Members: Stephen Barden, Liz Haldeman, Melissa Hartley, Valerie Kuthe, Patricia Matte, Daphne Owens, Meg Smith, Susan Staton, Jennie Williamson, and Walter Woolfolk.

Waste Not

Waste Not is a student recycling organization dedicated to finding effective and efficient ways to recycle materials. Waste Not focuses on educating students about the ways and benefits of recycling, as well as creating on-campus programs in which the students can participate.

Members include:
Rodger Brown, President. Jennie Williamson, Vice President, Treasurer. Bachman Smith, Secretary. Mark Smith, Trey Hunt, Carlyle Knox, Sean O'Quinn, Tricia Woods, Mikii Williams, Clay Hershey, Mary Clark, Ben Johnson, Frederick Lewis, Kevin Watt, Catherine Edwards, Amanda Cook, Debbie Crispin, Claire Drummond, Amy Hemstreet, Emily Hopkins, Chris Cudabac, Scott Buntin, Frank Sames, Lesley Chapman, Amy Swepston, Quisha White, Jefferson Parker, Chad Wolak, Tracy Bell, Ashley Brown, Susan Baskett, Roger Stott, Chris Smith, Leslie Walker, Jennifer Griffin, Ellie Burke, Lauren Smith, Mary James, Christian Simpson, David Hall, Lillian Rice, Andria Warren, Micaela Grant, Kim Koscheski, Betsy Yeckel

Sewanee Students for Life

The Sewanee Students for Life is an organization of students and community members which serves two purposes in our community. It provides service, such as supporting the local Crisis Pregnancy Center in Manchester, and attempts to educate both its members and others. This final purpose is achieved through discussion and hopefully in the future by bringing various speakers on campus.

Members: Katherine Hark, Susan Mueller, Kenny Bailey, Job Seese, David Kern, Nancy Nettles, Emily Barr, Catherine Edwars, Shawn Martin, Nicole Corlew, Kristina Erlewine, Tina Coniglio, Tricia Matte, Jordanna Tonn, Jody Dailey, Robin and Yslande Gottfried, Richard Ried, Tom and Stoney Davidheiser, Nancy Beth Spencer, Nisha Arunatilake, and Ginger Jolly.

YoungLife

YoungLife is a nationwide ecumenical ministry dedicated to meeting high school students "on their own turf" and building strong relationships through which the Gospel may be communicated. The Sewanee chapter is made up of college students with support from families in the Seminary and University Community. The chapter also has strong contacts with the Chattanooga Area Chapter and the national organization.

Leaders: Morgan Healey (Head), Gil Kracke, Lori Freeman, David Dault, Suzanna Lowery, and Susan Mueller.

TGIF

TGIF sponsors trips off The Mountain because sometimes it is difficult for people without cars to leave. We went to the Chattanooga Aquarium, the Chattanooga Mall, the Atlanta Coca-Cola museum, and a baseball game. Members include Sarah Stuart, My Khan Nguyen, and Nisha Bhatt.

Baptist Student Union

The Baptist Student Union is now in its second year of activity after being dormant for several years. BSU meets for weekly, informal Bible studies that include people of all denominations, and occasionally have guest speakers. Our motto is "student led, student fed." A different student volunteer leads the discussion each week, and participation in the study is greatly encouraged. So far, studies have included a range of topics from capital punishment to the Catholic church's stand on birth control.

This year has been special for BSU because of the increasing interest of those involved and a broader base of campus recognition. Hopefully in the upcoming years BSU will grow and be a continuing positive force in Sewanee. Members: Bill Hamner President in Exile, Chip Sanford Vice President, Robbie Delcamp, Brad Page, Nancy Reiser, Susan Rupert, and Will Womack.

Sewanee Popular Music Association

SPMA, affectionately known as SPAM, does its best to provide the University with another source for musical entertainment. It functions as a group outside of the Greek System, but in no way excludes those affiliated with the fraternity and sorority scene from participation. SPAM simply gives the students an opportunity to bring more good, alternative bands to Sewanee.

1992 officers: Lesley Chapman, president. Jennie Williamson, treasurer. Members: Franklin Sames, David Roark, Jefferson Parker, Neel Eargood, Rinne Allen, Celena Benjamin, Catherine Caruthers, Freddy Sauccy, Trey Hunt, Anderson Wrangle, Rodger Brown, Spam Reid, Justin King, Aaron McCullough, Kim Koscheski, Jane Irvin, Seth Spoelman, Caren Truby, Amy Swepston, Jennie Williamson, John Moore, Jim Hewett, Tobey Davis, Lesley Chapman, and Jonathon Walker.

Sewanee Conference on Women

The Sewanee Conference on Women, chaired by Laura Bucher, held from February 7 through 10, brought a heightened awareness of the role of women in society today. Guest speakers included: Sarah Weddington, who represented the plaintiff in Roe vs. Wade; author Ellen Douglas; artist Kathleen Collins; and Demitria Kalodimos, a Nashville television news anchor.

Jeff Muench and Heather Howell

College Democrats

The community has benefitted by being made increasingly politically aware through the efforts of the Sewanee College Democrats which was just re-founded last year. We pushed to increase political participation through a debate with the College Republicans, registering over 300 student voters in Franklin County (which allowed Sewanee students to determine the outcome of a local Superintendent race and put down a referendum on a Sewanee leash law), put candidate's position papers on reserve in the library and posted around campus for all to read, held a panel discussion on the Democratic primary candidates at a student/faculty dialogue and SPOed their short opinions on common issues to the entire student body, held election debate parties, put up posters explaining how to register to vote and for an absentee ballot in the various southern states, and held an election night party jointly with the College Republicans. Also, we attended a reception for Congressman Jim Cooper, Democratic Congressman from this district hosted by the Chi Psi Fraternity. Several members of the college democrats traveled to Atlanta to support Clinton/Gore at a rally. Many also went to Tullahoma and Winchester for local rallies with various congressmen and senators.

It was nice to see a vibrant group developing after just being refounded and the successful election also helped to boost our involvement. We definitely did not have a great affect nationally, but we did get people involved and excited about our national politics which was our goal and our real achievement. Bill Clinton winning was merely icing on the cake.

Jeff Muench, President; Parker Wheatly, Vice President; Liz Bull, Secretary

College Republicans

Although the election did not go as planned, the College Republicans thrived on campus. Lead by Heather Howell and Eric Stevenson, they enjoyed student debates in Elliott Hall and watching election results with parallel Democrat and Republican televisions in the Mary Sue Cushman Room.

Purple Masque and Dionysus and Company

The University boasts two threatre groups: Purple Masque and Dionysus and Company. These groups produce, direct, perform, and construct several plays each semester. Elizabeth Mallonee lead Dionysus in many productions including No Exit, Rosencrantz and Guilddenstern are Dead, and The Deep Blue Sea. Purple Masque and the Theatre Department productions: The Tempest, American Buffalo, The Pintaro Plays, and The Improv. Excellent set and lighting designs by Helen Prior and Jay Pigford, original plays by students such as Kaethe Hoeling, and enthusiasm of both cast and crew made this year special for both organizations.

Sewanee Outing Program

The current Sewanee Outing Program was established in 1969 under the name of Sewanee Ski and Outing Club. It was an informal group formed to offer students a way to take advantage of outdoor opportunities in the region. Nomenclature has evolved from the Ski and Outing Club to the Outing Club, and now the Outing Program. The primary function of the Outing Program is to offer a broad range of local and regional outdoor recreational opportunities to all students of the University in a relaxed setting that promotes camaraderie, skills knowledge, safety, and environmental education and appreciation. Other facets of the Outing Program include The Bike Shop, Carter Martin Whitewater Club, and the Perimeter Trail. Each year, the Outing Program sponsors the "PRE" — Orientation Trip for entering freshmen. A record number of freshmen, 107, participated in this year's PRE. Other events include day and overnight trips on weekdays and weekends. Longer trips are offered over Fall, Christmas, and Spring Breaks. The new addition to the program is the Sewanee Challenge, which was begun to encourage a broader range of student involvement. The Outing Program is directed by Freddie Devall (C. '91) and staffed by work-study students, Tyler Roper, Cameron Graham, Franklin Sames, Brad Mall Rob Sanford, Jason Vinton, Phillip Sims, Mary James, and Chris Elwell. We also rely heavily on volunteer trip leaders, including — Charles Israel, Dr. Doug Durig, Bryan Eklund, Phillipe Wheelock, Carl Thorneblade, and Cotton Bryan.

Island Ecology

Saint Catherine's Island is an undeveloped barrier island off the coast of Georgia. For five weeks of summer ten students immerse themselves in their surroundings while studying oceanography, geology, botany, and animal behavior. This hands-on seminar includes watching sea-turtles lay their eggs, long nights with Dr. Potter and his guitar, marsh mud fights, island ball, and pigs in the north.

European Studies

European Studies in Briatain and on the Continent take place during Advent Semester and is jointly sponsored by Rhodes College and The University of the South. The students spend four weeks in Sewanee for the summer, two weeks in York, six weeks in Oxford, four weeks on the Continent, and one week in London studying art history, literature, and religion.

Participants: Edie Dubose, Liz Cantey, Kim Giles, Lee Love, Valerie Morrison, Amanda Samson, Catherine Smith, Nancy Smith, Kristin Beize, Amy Covington, John Moore, Sharpe Belot, Harris Lowe, Geoff Euston, Bob Morris, Will Weaver, Scott Remington, and Jason Howell.

In our fourteenth year on the mountain, ADT continued many traditions as well as establishing new ones. ADT enjoyed the annual South of the Border party, Under the Mistletoe formals, and the Yellow Rose Ball. We also co-sponsored several new social events such as Heaven and Hell, Day of 1,000 Moonpies, and Freedom of Expression. We also managed to capture second place in IM football and third in volleyball. ADT maintained our devotion to community service by completing numerous projects. We hosted the Big People for Little People Halloween Party and the Easter Egg Hunt. We also conducted a book drive, elementary school tutoring, and CPR certification courses. Perhaps most exciting, ADT activated twenty-two members this spring. Obviously, Alpha Delta Theta has had a busy year.

The Tennessee Omega chapter of Alpha Tau Omega had a very productive year in 1992-1993. The chapter pledged twenty-one new members and increased its size to the largest fraternity on the mountain. The chapter house underwent extensive renovation this year which included repairs to the stained glass and the floors. The chapter had several successful parties including the annual Viking Party and the winter formal with the TKPs. This year ATOs remained involved in all facets of campus life, with brothers taking part in a myriad of non-fraternal activities. Members participated in varsity athletics, held offices in many organizations such as the Student Assembly, and served on the Honor Council and Discipline Committee.

Alpha Tau Zeta

Alpha Tau Zeta, the youngest sorority of the mountain, is a sisterhood of diversity within unity. Despite being one of the smaller sororities, together we were able to claim 1ST place in Intramurals during the fall semester. Then we pulled out the paint and brushes to spruce up the Otey Parrish playground for the children in community. Our traditional 'Best In Bed Race' was a great success, raising money for the Haven of Hope women's shelter. After a boot-stomping good time at our 'Southern Comfort' party and a relaxing afternoon at 'Day of 1000 Moon Pies' we concluded the year dressed to kill at our traditional Spring Formal. Whether in cowboy boots or elegant attire, we remain a sisterhood of togetherness.

Beta Theta Pi had another great year. After a very successful rush season, Beta finished off e first semester with the popular Surfing with Satan Halloween party and the highly uccessful Christmas Formal. During the Easter semester Beta hosted its second formal of the ear, the Valentine's Day Cheese Fest, and a country music party, Whiskey Ain't Workin'. he Betas also won the intramural pool championship and organized the Willie Six Block arty with several other campus organizations.

Chi Psi is a brotherhood of gentlemen. We are a diverse group of men united by bonds of trust and mutual support which extend through our intellectual, moral, and social lives. Though we are one of Sewanee's larger fraternities, we maintain the intimacy of a smaller group of brothers.

We have consistently been recognized by our national fraternity for excellence in upholding the ideals of Chi Psi, and we have won the University's Dean's Cup for fraternity excellence four of the six years it has been awarded. Our wide involvement in campus life includes such activities as the Order of Gownsmen, the Society of Wilkins Scholars, Phi Beta Kappa, the Student Assembly, the Sewanee Purple, the Cap and Gown, Dormitory Staff, Orientation Committee, the Emergency Medical Services, Chapel Outreach Ministries, volunteer community service, College Democrats, College Republicans, WUTS-FM, varsity athletics (swimming, soccer, football, track, cross-country), intramural athletics, the University Choir, Acolyte and Sacristans' Guilds, BACCHUS, and Dionysus & Co. Performing Arts Group. In addition to our diverse contributions on campus, Chi Psi maintains impressive academic standards: our overall GPA is well above the all men's average and is at the top of the all-Fraternity average.

DELTA KAPPA EPSILON

"Friends from the heart, forever." That is the motto of Delta Kappa Epsilon, founded at Yale in 1844, and the Tau Delta chapter at Sewanee in 1969. True to the motto, we Dekes have strong bonds of Brotherhood, despite our diverse backgrounds.

Equal parts of the gentleman, scholar, and jolly good fellow are the makings of a Deke. We have members participating in a variety of activities including the Order of Gownsmen, WUTS, Sewanee Purple, Arcadians, Acolyte Guild, The Mountain Journal, and varsity athletics. DKE is active in community service as well, providing man power for the Sewanee Recycling Center, drivers for the Safe Ride program, and even tutors at local high schools.

The Beta Theta Chapter of Delta Tau Delta has again embraced another fruitful year. The chapter has enjoyed the pledgeship and initiation of five men to the Fraternity this fall, and one this spring, engendering the traditions and lessons of 110 years to a promising future. Generous donations from alumni and parents allowed us to complete some much needed repairs to the shelter fireplace this fall, and this spring we renovated our upstairs commons room with new carpet, insulation, and a new ceiling. Our intramural teams in volleyball, basketball, softball, and ultimate among others were pretty consistently defeated in score but remain unmatched in errors, whiffs, and omnipotent sports knowledge. Our three major annual social functions, the Seventies Party, the Christmas Formal, and the Elvis Party were once again unmatched across campus. The Seventies Party was a polyester bonanza of orange and brown unrivaled on any Love Boat rerun. We enjoyed a formal dinner at the multicultural center before returning to the house with Prime Time for the evening of our Christmas Formal. Elvin once again made his yearly showing with the Icons this spring.

The sisterhood of Gamma Tau Upsilon, as a group, has been active this year in activities such as their annual Halloween Party, Christmas formal, Birthday Party, and the Barefoot Formal in the spring. It has also taken part in service projects such as weekly volunteer work at the Sewanee Recycling Center and participation in the Sewanee Spring Clean-up. With this year's pledge class of seven, it currently has fourteen members who participate in such diverse individual activities as Dionysus and Company, Purple Masque, the University Choir, WUTS, the equestrian team, Perpetual Motion, cheerleading, Young Life, the Canterbury Group, Growing in Grace, Waste Not, Voice for Choice, Big People for Little People, the canoe team, and the fencing team.

DIEU ET LES DAMES

The gentleman does not needlessly and unnecessarily remind an offender of a wrong he may have committed against him. He cannot only forgive, he can forget; and he strives for that nobleness of self and mildness of character which impart sufficient strength to let the past be but the past. A true man of honor feels humbled himself when he cannot help humbling others.

— Robert E. Lee

LAMBDA CHI ALPHA

Lambda Chi Alpha was founded at Boston University in 1909, and has since grown to be the nation's second largest fraternity. Our chapter, Iota-Nu Zeta, was formed when Sewanee's maverick local fraternity, Upsilon Sigma, went national in 1963. The first Sewanee Lambda Chis believed that creativity, respect, and individualism were principal pillars of strong brotherhood. This is a tradition the current brothers proudly uphold.

The Lambda Chis are a diverse group, and we consider this an asset. You will find us an active part of every facet of campus life. Whether it's the Sewanee Purple, intramural and varsity sports, dramatic productions, community service programs, the symphony, the University Choir, social organizations or the Order of Gownsmen, the Lambda Chis are there. Standing together as brothers and individuals, we are committed to excellence and leadership. But keep in mind that underneath we are also still the mavericks.

Phi Gamma Delta, founded at Sewanee in 1919, enjoyed an eventful year in all facets of student life. We had successful Fall and Spring rushes resulting in the pledging of twelve young men. The Phi Gams participated in the annual blood drive and continued to maintain their Adopt-A-Mile highway spot. Also, the Fiji's volunteered to repair houses in the community to benefit needy families, and drove Bacchusmobile. The Christmas formal with the theta Pis and the Black Diamond Formal were both as successful as in past years. During the Advent semester, the Phi Gams achieved the highest GPA among all active fraternity men. In the Spring, Tyrone Smith and the Revue, a 12 piece soul band, proved to be one of the best parties of the year, attracting a huge crowd. Also, the chapter continued to perform well in intramural sports. Finally, Fiji Island during Spring Party Weekend was a great party to complete another successful year.

AMICITA IN AETERNUM

As one of the largest sororities, on the Mountain, Phi Kappa Epsilon was active in all aspects of Sewanee life this year. The social calendar was kept full with parties such as Margaritaville and Trick or Drink as well as Christmas and Spring formals. As service to the community PKE adopted part of Sherwood Rd., helped sponsor a Halloween party for Big People for Little People, participated in the Blood Drives, and ran a booth at Earth Day. Second semester started off strong with thirty enthusiastic pledges. They kept busy by painting the playground at the elementary school, lip synching in Rock-a-Like, and throwing the 3rd annual Bacchus party. Through lots of hard work all thirty successfully completed pledgeship and became active members. The sorority showed lots of spirit in IMs this year by not forfeiting a single game. The monthly PKE bonding sessions ranged from hiking to Foster Falls to dancing the night away at Rumors. Phi Kappa Epsilon experienced an exciting year full of parties, fun, and friendship.

Theta Kappa Phi, the oldest sorority on the mountain, began the year successfully by sponsoring the King of the Mountain Triathalon, with proceeds going to the Appalachian Womens Guild. In the fall, the TKPs enjoyed pre-rush activities, and their hard work was rewarded in January with the addition of twenty-seven new members. The first annual Arabian Knights party to welcome the pledges was a great success. In April, the Theta Kappa Phis along with the Kappa Alphas sponsored a fundraising trip to an Atlanta Braves baseball game. They ended the year with a great Spring formal on May 1st.

ECCE QUAM BONUM

Theta Pi Sorority has seen another highly successful year in 199-1993. After receiving the Dean's Cup at the beginning of the year for the first time, we have worked hard to uphold the standards we have set for ourselves. Theta Pi has been extremely active on campus. We have experienced continued success in both community service and social activities.

This increase in community service and charity work has been a specific goal of the Theta Pi's this year. The two outstanding projects of the year were community holiday parties and a student Dating Game. We also contributed to the University in other great ways: Greening the Chapel for Lesson and Carols, packing box lunches for Otey Parish, donating food through the ISC for the Franklin County Food Pantry, participating in the Best in Bed Race, financially supporting the Sewanee Conference on Women and the Sewanee Shakespeare Festival, working on the Sewanee Outreach projects by repairing local houses and much more.

In addition to our service to the community, Theta Pi sponsors several great parties this year including the Western Party, Blue Whales, Mai Tai, the Run for the Roses Spring Formal, and a Parents' Weekend Banquet.

Theta Pis were well represented in all areas around campus. Members include Proctors, Assistant Proctors, the Women's Head Proctor, members of the Chapel Staff, DJ's at WUTS, EMT's, Choir members, the ISC Vice President, OG members, Student Assembly representatives, and the Women's Center Manager. Theta Pi's participate in a range of sports from soccer to equestrian.

Theology

SEAL OF THE UNIVERSITY OF THE SOUTH 1858

The dean is the celebrant as the community gathers for the celebration of the eucharist (top right). The chapel got a "face-lift" during the summer when oriental rugs were placed atop the otherwise bland carpeting and, under the artistic direction of Barbara Hughes, the cross was accentuated with color.

Displaying a dress code alternative (above), Dean Lytle and junior Mark Ginzo give their rendition of what the properly dressed Anglican should sport for all occasions.

The procession pauses outside the doors of the chapel (right). Celebrant Sister Lucy, far left, is joined by (l. to r.) Bill Hethcock, Jack Gessell, torchbearer David McCarthy, Joe Monti, crucifer Patricia Templeton, thurifer Bill Bennett, and torchbearer Brad Page.

Casting Her "Spell" . . .

Yea Sewanee's Rite

From the early decades of the nineteenth century, when the founders of The University of the South first dreamed of a great university for their region, a concern for theological education was an essential part of their vision. Despite the setbacks of the Civil War, in 1868 the University opened with the modest resources available, and within a year students at Sewanee were "reading theology." In 1872, the first Sewanee-trained priest was ordained. By 1878, The School of Theology was formally organized as a seminary of the Episcopal Church, with its dean, faculty, and building. Still the school maintained its position as an integral part of the University as it has to the present. This was best symbolized by the fact that the first dean of the seminary, Telfair Hodgson, who served from 1878 to 1893, also acted for ten of those years as Vice-Chancellor of the University. St. Luke's, the former seminary chapel, built in 1907, was dedicated in Dean Hodgson's honor.

William Porcher DuBose, the school's second dean, is perhaps the most outstanding scholar in the history of the School of Theology and is recognized by many as the leading theologian of the Episcopal Church. His writings have been widely read, particularly in England.

During the tenures of Dean Hodgson and Dean DuBose, the School of Theology assumed its characteristic position as an upholder of the great heritage of Anglican thought handed down from the universities of England. It has blended together, in one institution, influences from both the Evangelical and the High Church traditions of southern churchmanship. While playing an important role as an integral part of the University, the school has also moved outward in mission into many rural communities surrounding it.

In 1937, the Graduate School of Theology was founded by Royden Keith Yerkes for the continuing education of clergy, and ever since, both graduate and continuing theological education have been a part of Sewanee's contribution to the church. For many years, Massey Shepherd, a major figure in liturgical studies and the liturgical movement, served as director of the graduate school. In 1975, the Graduate School of Theology became the Doctor of Ministry program.

During the tenure of Dean George Alexander from 1957 to 1972, the seminary's main building, St. Luke's Hall, was renovated and expanded, and the building of married student housing units was pushed forward. Until his untimely death in 1981, Dean Urban T. Holmes III, Dean Alexander's successor, made major contributions through his gifts as a theologian and theological educator both to the School of Theology and to the church at large. Under the leadership of Dean John Everitt Booty, the School of Theology moved to Hamilton Hall in August, 1984. Robert Giannini became the twelfth dean of the School of Theology in August of 1986. Upon Dean Giannini's departure, Guy Fitch Lytle III became dean of the school in August of 1991. Under Dean Lytle the school continues to be a vigorous force in the church.

— excerpted from the Bulletin

The Very Reverend Guy Fitch Lytle III (top), thirteenth dean of the School of Theology, joins with other faculty members prior to the academic procession at opening convocation in September.

Alumnae, alumni, students, and faculty (bottom) crowd into the chapel for the eucharist during the annual DuBose lectures held in October. The lectures, named in honor of William Porcher DuBose, bring to the domain key authors and lecturers in twentieth century theology. The DuBose lecturer for 1993 was Douglas John Hall of McGill University, a widely read author whose works include Thinking the Faith and Lighten Our Darkness.

Whatever Else . . .

We've Got Class

Any student who enters Sewanee and wonders what on earth could possibly fill the next one, two, or three years has not carefully read the course bulletin, for, regardless of the degree program, the School of Theology offers an ambitious curriculum that covers a broad variety of disciplines.

Not only are there required courses and several elective opportunities, but courses can also be developed that meet the individual needs of students. For example, students who have a background in either Hebrew or Greek can opt to take scripture electives in the biblical language while those without biblical language backgrounds may take the electives in English.

Those on the M.Div/L.Th. track face three full years of classroom work. Students will take required classes in Church History, Ethics, Liturgics, Old and New Testament, Pastoral Theology, Theology, and Homiletics in addition to CPE, field work, senior seminar, and the requisite number of theology and scripture electives.

Students in M.A. and M.T.S. programs and Anglican Studies stay equally busy with courses of study that include many of the same courses as the M.Div/L.Th. students but are tailored to the specific needs and intentions of those students. Opportunities also exist for some coursework in the undergraduate school.

Going over the myriad details that are involved in student scheduling, Bob Creamer of the Church Relations Office and Registrar Liz Camp (facing page, top) strive to see that each student is where he or she is supposed to be at the proper time.

The juniors have a brief classroom interruption from the middlers (facing page, bottom) as "Midlore" rears its ugly (OK, unusual) head for yet another year. A kind of "rite of passage," it officially marks the end of orientation and confirms for the middlers that they won't have to make coffee in the lounge ever again.

Classes are not without their visitors (above, left). During a Church History II class about the colonial church, middler Linnae Peterson appeared in an Old Salem outfit much to the surprise of Professor Don Armentrout.

End-of-term group projects are a favorite gamble of Old Testament/Hebrew professor Becky Wright (above). The Exodus elective spawned the cast pictured to the left in a production of "Ben and Tom's Exodus Adventure." Essentially it was a story about a high-church Anglican and an evangelical who . . . Well, you had to be there . . . or buy the tape.

Spouses and children are as much a part of the student body as the students. Moving to the Mountain means including oneself in a small community, probably unlike any community from which people have moved. Theolog intramural athletics are great spectator sports (right) as Sandra and Zachary Brown have found out.

The "Prom" provided a concluding highlight for the year (below). Senior Sharon Lewis and Henry Gaede, spouse of middler Sarah Gaede, share a dance and perhaps some commentary on Henry's knees.

Sewanee means children. Between seminary kids and school classmates there is never a shortage of people for games, parties, or just hanging out — as Polk and Mary Jo VanZandt found out when their son had a small gathering of friends at their house for a birthday party.

SEWANEE
SEWANEE
SEWANEE

A rather bizarre family portrait (top) was taken when middlers visited artist Howard Finster's house/studio as part of a side trip during the "Plum Nellie" outing.

Tom Rutherford (left) appears to have been captured by a child who wants Daddy to put the books aside for awhile and play.

Bill Ryan arrived at Sewanee as a single seminarian. By graduation he had married Katherine Feltman, another seminarian, and had become a father, making Sewanee truly a family kind of place.

On The Domain, It's

A Family Affair

It has been said that the strength of Sewanee is its size. It has also been said that the drawback of Sewanee is its size. Anyone who doesn't like to be around people will probably experience some discomfort in the Sewanee atmosphere. While the Domain is not heavily populated, the people who do live here form a close community that watches out for one another in every way. And if you are a seminarian living in the Woodlands it is almost impossible to escape being a part of that community!

Seminarians and their families move here lock, stock, and barrel for whatever amount of time their course of study prescribes, to live side by side with others who share a similar journey. Even those who come without families can count on being "adopted" by others.

And within that "larger family" environment are shared the joys and the sorrows, the successes and the failures, the decisions and the doubts, the elations and the depressions. One family's children become everyone's children; one family's pets become everyone's pets. And although it is a relatively short amount of time that we are all together, we become to one another family members whose futures we will follow, whose names will be repeated in our prayers, and whose impact upon our lives will be as though we had known one another forever.

Beyong The Gates

On A Mission

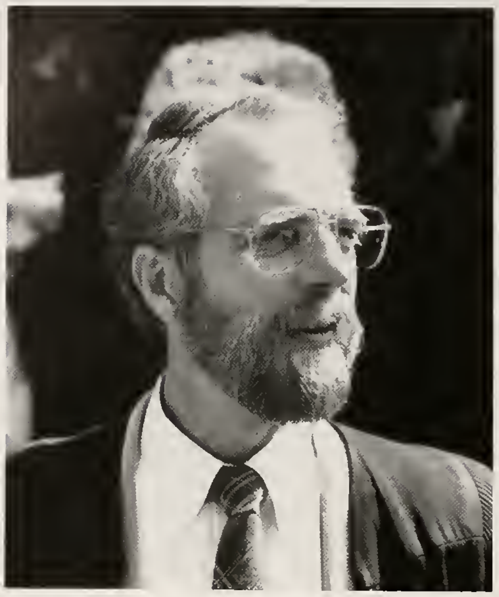
It is easy to become absorbed in the every day life that is seminary. Classes, study time, papers, committee meetings, family obligations, down time for personal sanity . . . yet the spirit of outreach permeates the seminary community. From work within the boundaries of the Domain to work outside the borders of the United States, seminarians regularly are involved in a variety of projects aimed at helping those who are in need.

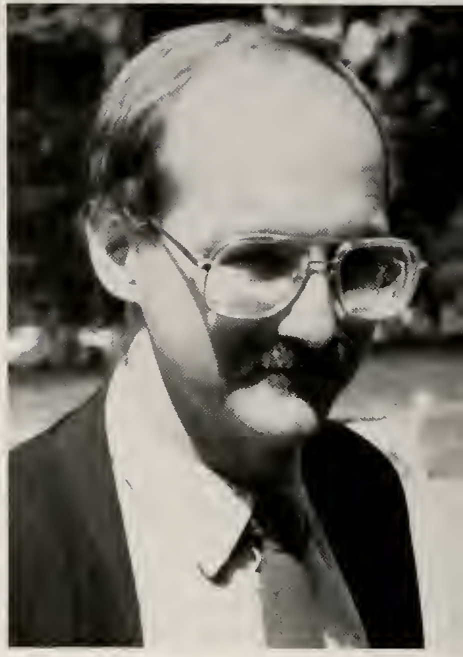
The Missions Committee is primarily committed to supporting needs in the local community such as local parish programs and the Appalachian Women's Guild, although they do support through donations such wider causes as the Presiding Bishop's Fund and the SPCK. And donations are not limited to money, for they are also active putting people to work in home repair and book distribution.

Seminarians also work closely with Dixon Myers who directs mission work for the University as a whole. Both on and off the Domain Dixon takes undergraduates and seminarians for day, weekend, or week-long projects that provide the building or the repair of housing for the elderly, the disabled, or those who cannot afford improvements that are not only important but necessary for their health and well-being.

Outreach takes no vacations, either. Spring breaks are usually spent in extensive mission projects that take students to New Orleans, Jamaica, or wherever else there is a need for "people power".

The Spouses of the Seminary also do extensive outreach. Their annual auction of items donated by area merchants and residents raises several thousand dollars which are put back into the community. Hot selling items at this year's auction included dance time with that duke of dance Don Armentrout and dinners prepared and served by Guy and Maria Lytle.





No stranger to outreach, Keith Talbert (top, left) spends many of his weekends putting sweat equity into local housing repair projects. He also spent his Spring Break in Jamaica on a University missions project. Tom Rutherford (top, right) has always been active in youth work and is part of a nation-wide program that provides training for youth group leaders.

Sally McNaughton (above, with Rob Lamborn) ser as the chair of the Missions Committee. Under direction the committee was a vital part of commur life and Sally kept the seminary community infor of pressing needs. Collections at the Wednesday charist assisted the funding of projects undertaken the Missions Committee.

the C.I.A. CRUCIFIES CHRIST

A controversy arose (top, left) concerning the granting of an honorary degree at the Founders' Day ceremonies. Although academics can take up most of a seminarian's time, the issues of the larger world remain focal points for most.

Experienced in mission work in Haiti, Tommy Johnston (above) and his wife Rees lived and worked there prior to their coming to seminary. They remain in contact with the friends which they made there and hope to return someday.

What's an auction without auctioneers? The Spouses organization recruited auctioneers to move the many sale items. Bob Nagy (left) and Susan Bear (top, right) were "Da Disciples of Da Dean", stealing the idea shamelessly from the SNL Chicago Bears skit.

On A Journey

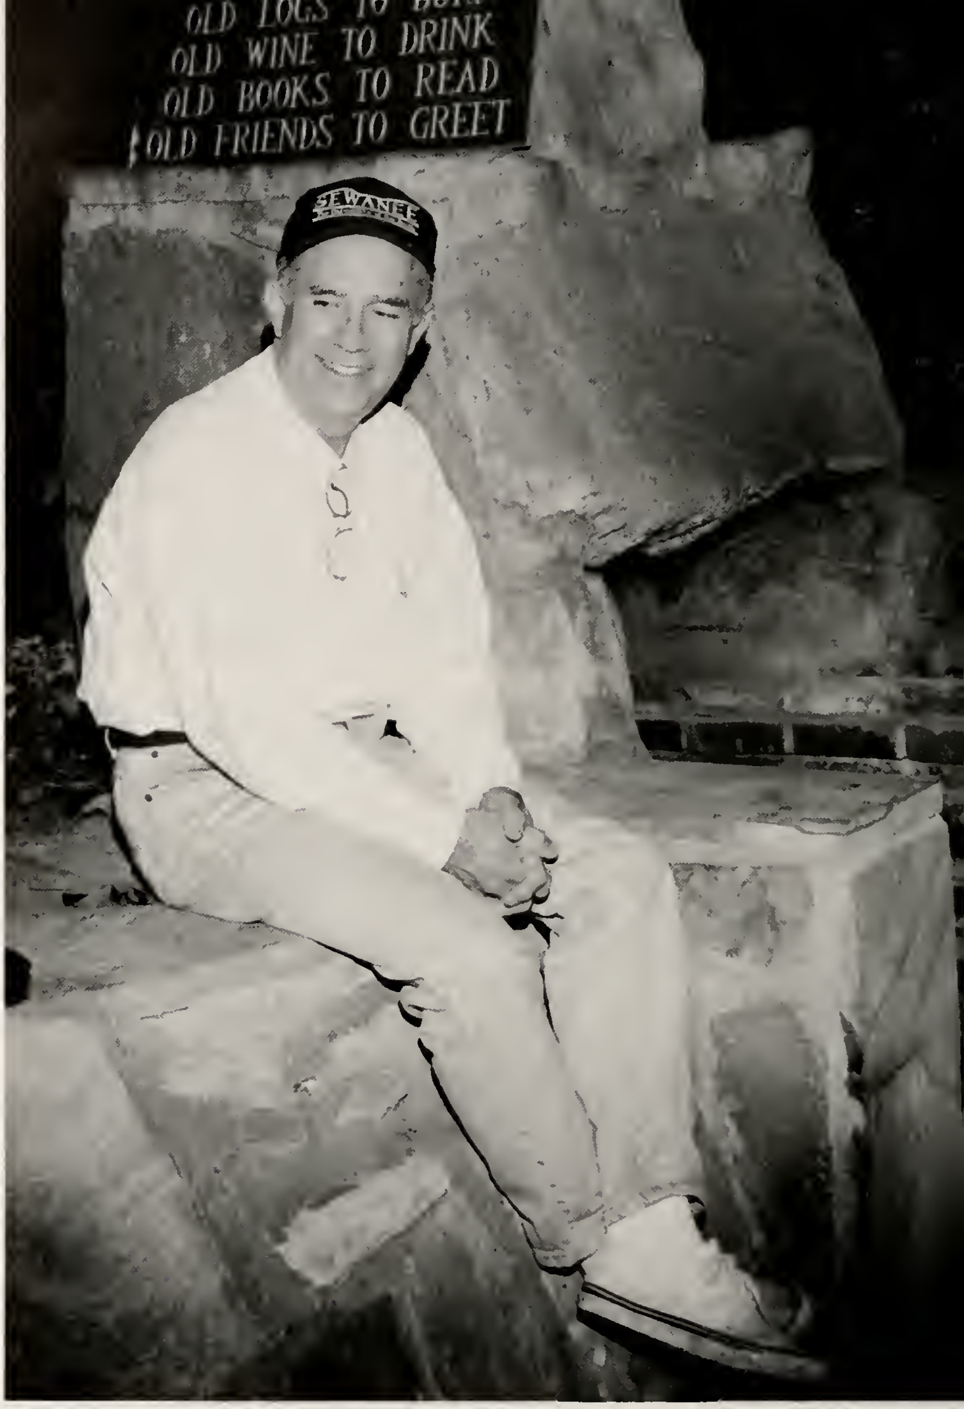
From everywhere

We come together at Sewanee with our own stories and our own backgrounds and even our own destinations, but we all share a journey for the time that we are together, bound by a call to serve God and the Gospel with our varieties of gifts.

Beginning seminarians on the ordination track can look forward to three years of study and growth and Ember Day letters back to their sponsoring bishops and dioceses, dreaming of that day (which can simultaneously feel so far and yet so near) when we can place orders for bona fide clergy clothes from our Wippel or Almy reps. Between orientation and the Crossing will be deadlines and challenges and candidacy interviews and GOE's and ordination votes and job interviews. And lives that continue to grow and unfold in a mountain top environment.

M.A. students pass up middler year altogether, going from junior to senior status and graduation in two years. M.A. students provide their own special twist on a seminary education, exploring the many ways in which ministry is done and providing a pool of specially trained lay ministers for the church at large.

Special students such as Anglican Studies enrollees often come to the Episcopal Church and Sewanee having been ordained in other traditions. Usually here for just one year, the special students complete the tapestry that is the body of Christ and are an excellent source from which all can learn.



Coming from the Roman Catholic tradition, John Scott (top) spent a year at Sewanee as an Anglican Studies student. He was one of several special students who wove in and out of junior, middler, and senior classes in order to get an Episcopal overview.

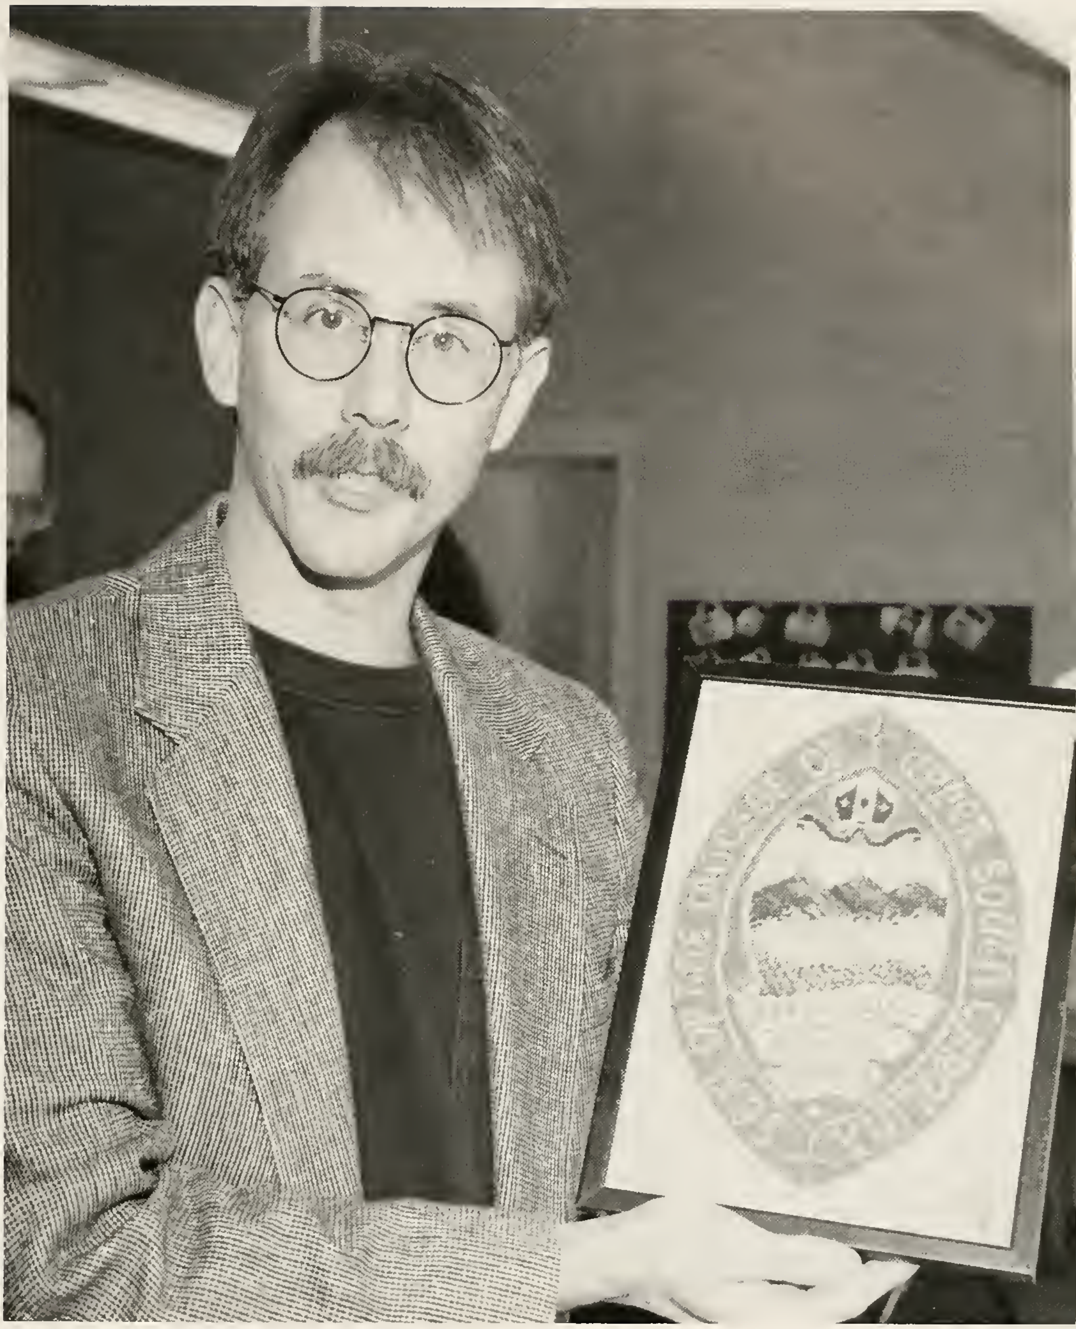
Squinting in the bright sunlight of Opening Convocation day, senior Mickey Richaud (far right) came to Sewanee from Western Louisiana and left after graduation for a church in Nashville. During his senior year, Mickey was president of the seminary student body.



The Fighting Theologs (left) joined whole-heartedly into the intramural athletic fray. Playing touch football, volleyball, softball, basketball, whatever the season demanded, team members worked hard to show undergraduate teams that they were a force with which to reckon . . . or at least have a good time. Ken Vinal (top, left) acted as player/manager/pleader-for-participants. Many of the victories were the result of hard-fought forfeits.

Dann Brown came as a Masters' student and left with an M.Div. The seal of his home diocese which he holds is one of many that were given to the seminary by Mrs. John Allin, seals which she had collected over the years when her husband was Presiding Bishop.

Sporting clothes that give away his Texas roots, Ram Lopez (above) observes the action during the Prom. The last party of the year, students took the theme as an opportunity to break out the formal attire that got moved here when they did but hasn't had many chances to see the light of day since.

A first semester party brought out the inclusivity police, checking to make sure that the celebration was meeting the criterion of political correctness.

At the head of the dance line can always be found the duke of dance Don Armentrout. Unable to sit still when the music is playing, Don is a tireless dance partner for any number of rockin' party-goers. Dance time with Don brought top dollar at the Spouses' Auction.

It's Party Time

Yea Sewanee Nights

Seminarians are serious students. They possess determination and drive to do the best possible job at whatever the endeavor requires. They bring those same qualities to partying. Classes have parties throughout the year, some with themes like the middler "Halfway" party, others with themes like "hey, we haven't had a party for awhile;" Martin Luther's birthday was an occasion for a party. It doesn't take much.

Seminary-wide parties, many sponsored by the Spouses' organization, offered the opportunity for everyone — students and staff — to relax and enjoy. Seniors who had just completed GOE's were feted with a January gathering; parties opened school and closed school; they welcomed and they said good-bye. Most of all they said, "Hey, we're still people, you know."

No party would be complete without music and dancing and luckily seminarians brought their golden oldies with them. Between Ben Dixon and John Capellaro, it was safe to assume that every Top 100 record since rock and roll was named was stashed somewhere waiting to be played and danced to. And the dancing was invariably led by the School of Theology's own duke of dance, dean of debonair Don Armentrout.

Angie and Scott Trotter (top, left) dressed to the nines for Prom night while Tommy Johnston (top, right) went from glad rags to just rags during the course of the evening.

A special guest appearance by the Donettes was the highlight of one party.

Carolyn Ryan pauses for some refreshments and conversation on Prom night. Carolyn and Dennis (a senior and a Donette) return to Mississippi after graduation.

Running The Show

Yea Sewanee's Might

Though perhaps not the largest faculty in Christendom, the faculty and staff of the School of Theology represents an array of the best and the brightest minds in theology and seminary education. Authors, experts, noted lecturers abound at the School of Theology and leave their marks upon their students for the rest of the students' careers.

Moreover, the Junior is at heart an idealist. He constantly longs for the good old times which really never existed. No wonder then that he clings to the theory that life under the old hall system was a much finer thing than existance at the Hoffman Dormitory. No wonder he believes that the grass was greener than it is now; that the moon shone with a lustre that is forever gone. Yes, he is an idealist.

Ode To Sleep

O blessed goddess, daughter of divine fatigue, Whoe'er has missed thy comfort knows thy solace well:
There seem to be against the weary man in league
The loathsome minions who inhabit shades of hell.

Stretch out thine arms, thy restful arms divine and fair,
And let us deeply drink of Lethe's flood at last:
The leaden hours of night have fled to Western lair,
The roseate hues of dawning day break on us fast.

Sewanee

Sewanee's cliffs are laurel-crowned,
  And hills and road and bower
Are brimming full of beauty
  When the laurel is in flower.
The four great winds of heaven come
  And burrow in the bloom,
And year by year for laurel
  Sewanee finds more room.

Sewanee's brows are laurel-crowned,
  And each of us has power
To high Sewanee's laurel-wreath
  To add another flower.
The four great winds of heaven
  Shall blow abroad her fame;
So live that in her laurels
  One laurel bears your name.

ELLIOTT HA

We should be glad that our green shady paths have broadened into roads, even though we do not admire the ruts and the red clay. The green paths were beautiful and romantic, but the roads mean traffic, and may be some day these very roads will be leveled and graveled, and may be made as beautiful as roads can be. We miss the old simplicity, the dropping in informally for dinner or tea, or even breakfast. We miss the communal interest in the larger entertainments, when everybody lent plates and silver, or anything that was needed. We miss the walking parties, the ox-wagon picnics, the exploring expeditions down into the caves and valleys, the professors and students all walking and talking and laughing in company. Many, many things of this kind are missing, and Sewanee looks back on them as to the golden days of childhood — happy-hearted, fancy-free days.

The romance is here still; a certain kind can be flushed in couples almost anywhere in the green woods, and the love which one bears to the place is surely as romantic as it ever was. Let us paint the old days in as brilliant colors as they deserve, let us talk of them as lovingly as we feel, let us, if possible, make all the moderns sorrowfully jealous of not having lived during the time when Mr. Guerry danced, when Bishop Gailor was chaplain and played ball, and Bishop Sessums taught in the Grammar School.

Yes, "the old order changeth, yielding place to the new." A new form, perhaps, but we have the same old force that has been here always, because that force is love and faith — the faith that, whatever happens, says, "It must be best and right, because it happens to Sewanee."

— Sarah Barnwell Elliott, 1900

The University of the South means different things to different people. To the stranger sitting next to you on the air-plane home at break-time or to the inquiring gas-station attendant, even to some of your old friends, it is merely a name. To your parents it is the source of all erudition and a safe place to send you. To the girl you are pinned to it is the best party anywhere. But to us, Sewanee is something entirely different from what it appears to be to outsiders. In the light of four years' experience, the Mountain has been depressing at times when your grades did not show a true measure of the sedulous work you put into a course, when a meaningful date for a party-weekend fell through, or when the team of which you were a part lost a ball game even after days of prudent preparation. At other times, the friendships made here and the knowledge gained through hard knocks and honest endeavor could not be measured in any material form, and more than made up for any regrets. In short, the true worth of our Sewanee education will manifest itself to each individual in the years to come.

Charge to the Graduates

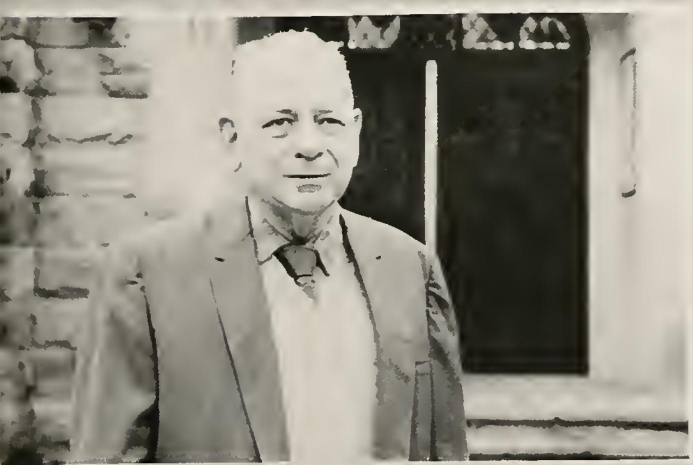
Chosen and honored youths, see to it that you shall bear yourselves with uprightness and integrity to the glory of God, to the honor of the State, and to the good name of this University.

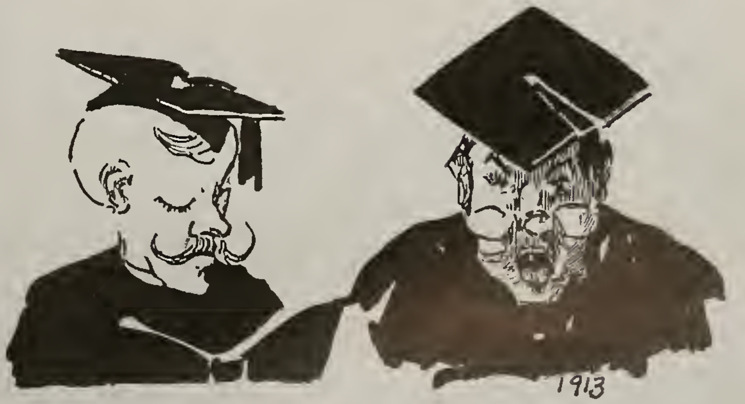
Upon finally receiving diplomas and rightfully stepping on the Seal at All Saints, we shall descend from The Mountain, taking our Angels with us, and go forward into the world with a unique experience called Sewanee as our guide.

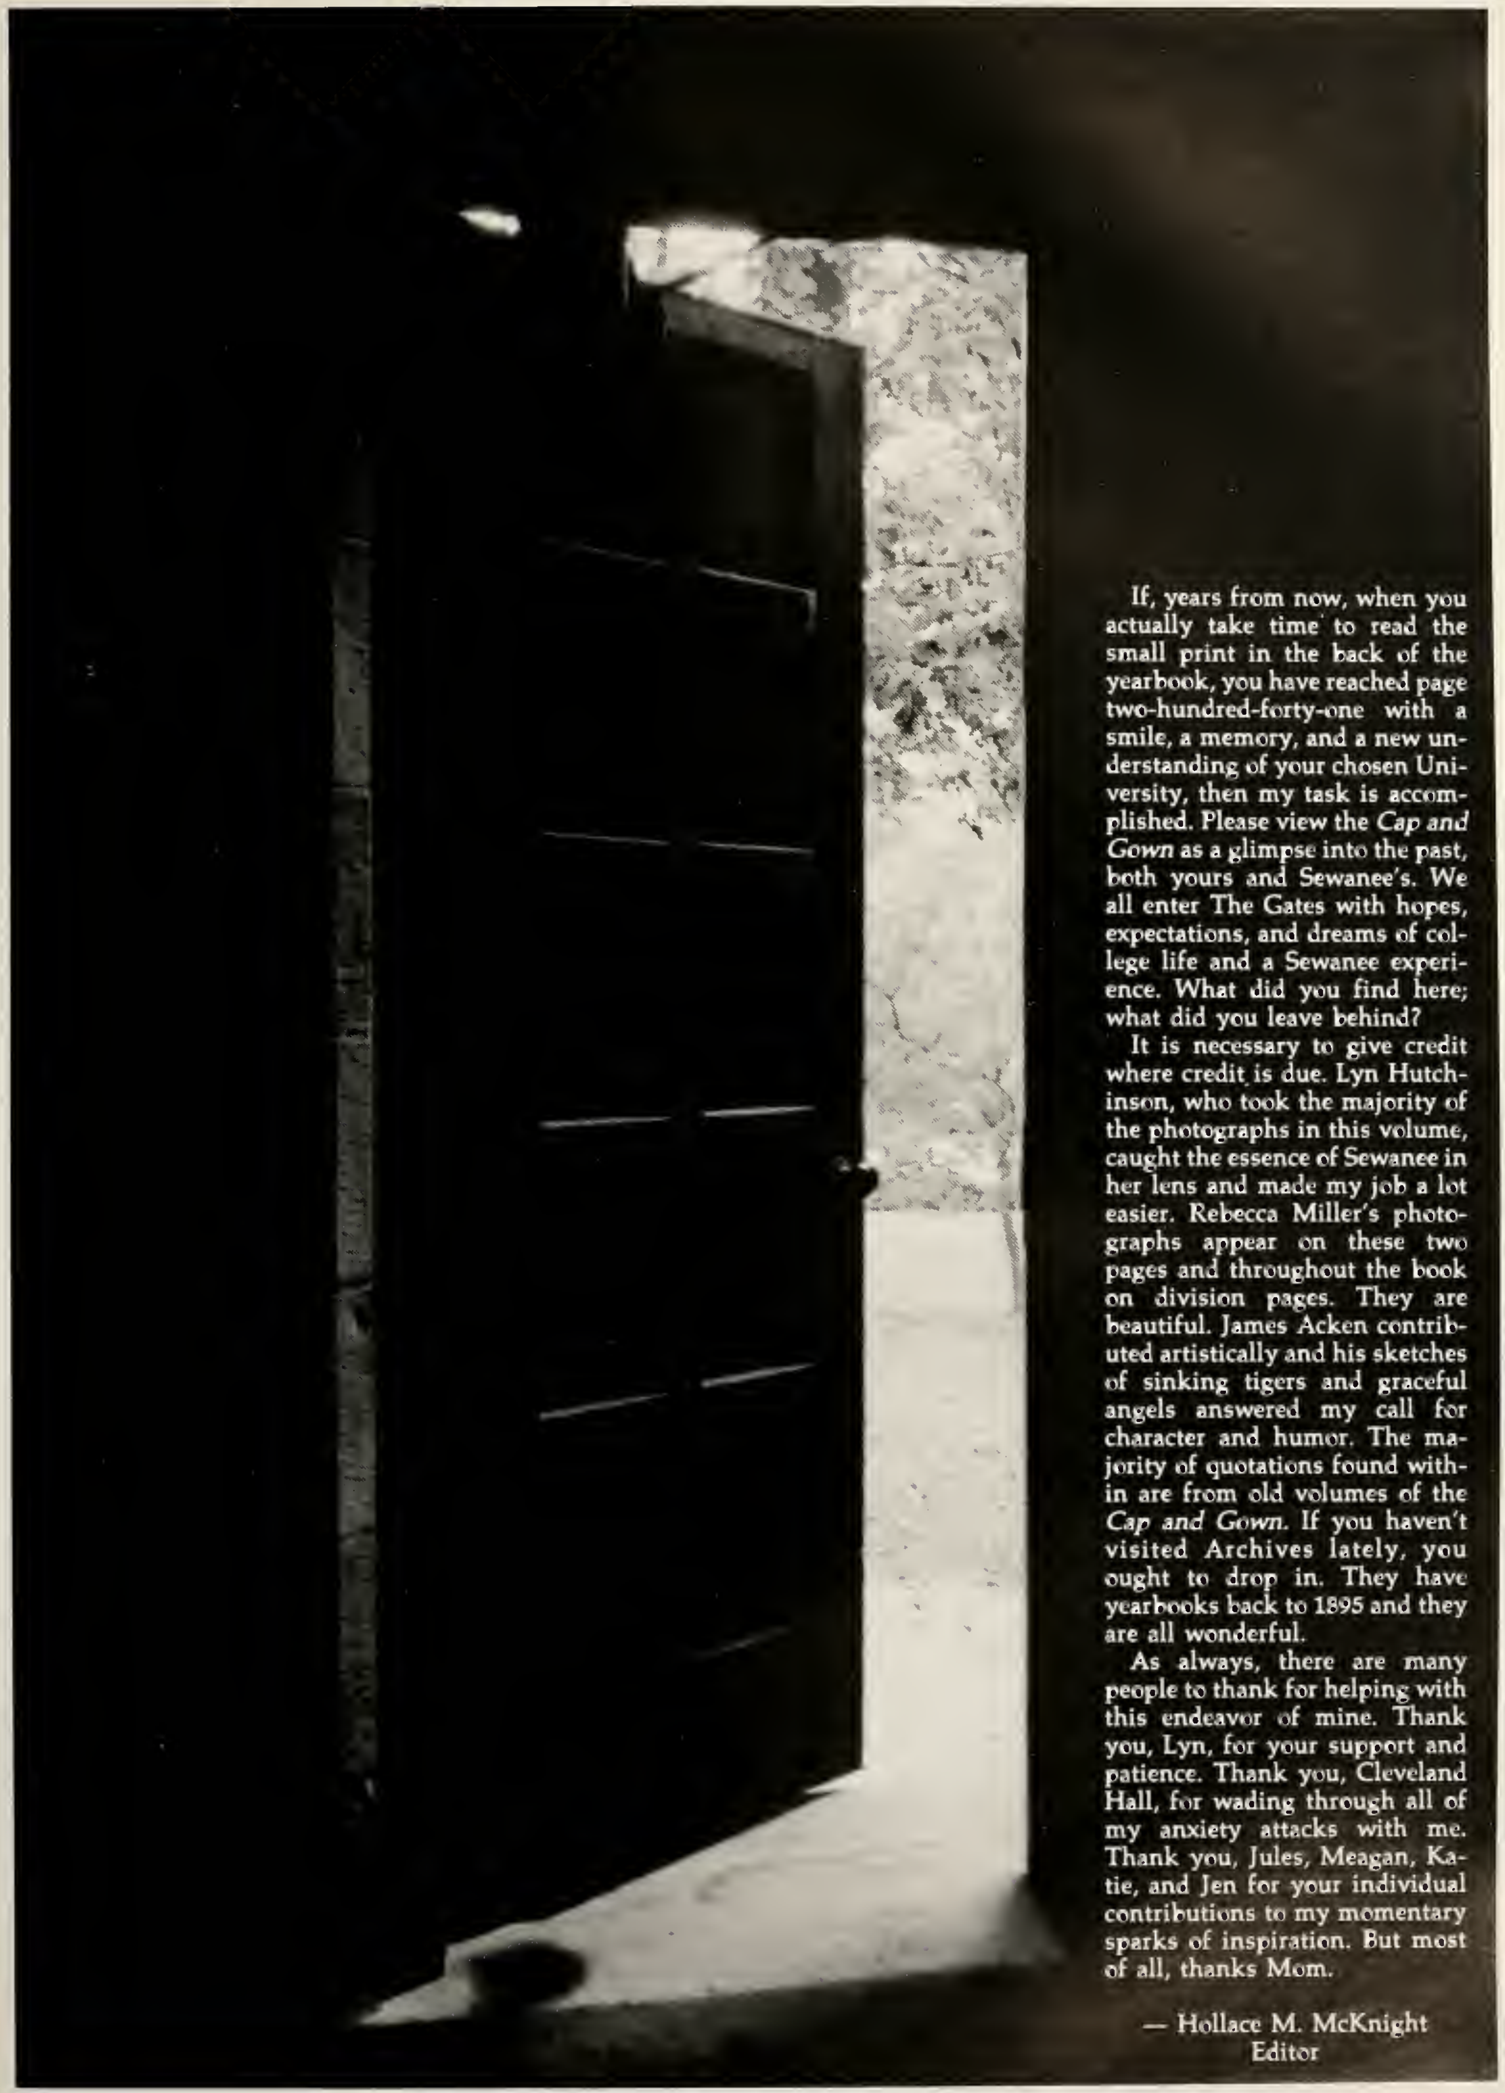
Charles William Foreman

"Paper and ink would fail us if we attempted to tell of the "governors, teachers, spiritual pastors and masters" that in past times have been sent here by Trustees. Nice, kindly old gentlemen whose educations had stopped fifty years before, but whose "general knowledge and infinite goodness would easily enable them to compass and fill any chair." And each man would come and conquer and remain, or fail and go, but Sewanee lived on."

This volume of the Cap and Gown is dedicated to Stephen Puckett, Scott Bates, and Charles Forman. Your life devotion to Sewanee is deeply appreciated. We bid you a warm thank you and a fond farewell.







If, years from now, when you actually take time to read the small print in the back of the yearbook, you have reached page two-hundred-forty-one with a smile, a memory, and a new understanding of your chosen University, then my task is accomplished. Please view the Cap and Gown as a glimpse into the past, both yours and Sewanee's. We all enter The Gates with hopes, expectations, and dreams of college life and a Sewanee experience. What did you find here; what did you leave behind?

It is necessary to give credit where credit is due. Lyn Hutchinson, who took the majority of the photographs in this volume, caught the essence of Sewanee in her lens and made my job a lot easier. Rebecca Miller's photographs appear on these two pages and throughout the book on division pages. They are beautiful. James Acken contributed artistically and his sketches of sinking tigers and graceful angels answered my call for character and humor. The majority of quotations found within are from old volumes of the Cap and Gown. If you haven't visited Archives lately, you ought to drop in. They have yearbooks back to 1895 and they are all wonderful.

As always, there are many people to thank for helping with this endeavor of mine. Thank you, Lyn, for your support and patience. Thank you, Cleveland Hall, for wading through all of my anxiety attacks with me. Thank you, Jules, Meagan, Katie, and Jen for your individual contributions to my momentary sparks of inspiration. But most of all, thanks Mom.

The University of the South

Sewanee, Tennessee

THE UNIVERSITY is under the joint control of eighteen dioceses of the Protestant Episcopal Church. Opened in 1868. Located at Sewanee, Tennessee, on the Cumberland Mountains, two thousand feet above the level of the sea, and about one thousand feet above the surrounding valleys. The scenery is beautiful, the climate is salubrious, and the inhabitants are especially exempt from malarial and pulmonary complaints. Sewanee has a national reputation as a health resort. The atmosphere, even in the hot season, is delightful and well adapted to the requirements of a Summer School. The following departments of the University are well equipped and fully organized with a thoroughly efficient corps of professors:

Academic, Theological, Medical, Law, Pharmaceutical, Engineering

¶ While Sewanee's claim to stand for training in classical and literary culture is justified by the large number of alumni who have attained to prominence in journalism and literature, many are successful in business, and several are engaged in the practice of architecture. ¶ Through the generosity of a beneficiary, an offer has been made for the building of a $60,000 Science Hall, which, when completed and properly equipped, will fill a long-felt need in the broader growth of the University. ¶ The SEWANEE GRAMMER SCHOOL prepares boys for this and other Universities and for business. ¶ Trinity Term, 1909, begins July 5th; Advent Term, 1909, begins September 19th; Lent Term, 1910, begins March 19th. Vacation from the middle of December to the middle of March, instead of during the Summer months. ¶ For catalogue and other information addresss

MOM TOOK ME TO THE LIBRARY TODAY, DAD.
THAT'S NICE. DID YOU GET OUT A BOOK?
YEP. IT'S GREAT! I HAD NO IDEA BOOKS COULD BE SO MUCH FUN.
AND YOU'LL LEARN THINGS, TOO.
I'LL SAY! MY BOOK SAYS THAT THIS ONE WASP LAYS ITS EGG ON A SPIDER, SO WHEN THE EGG HATCHES, THE LARVA EATS THE SPIDER, SAVING THE VITAL ORGANS FOR LAST, SO THE SPIDER STAYS ALIVE WHILE ITS BEING DEVOURED!
GROSS, HUH?
ISN'T THERE A STREET CORNER WHERE HE COULD HANG OUT INSTEAD?
AND COLOR PICTURES, TOO! WANT TO SEE 'EM?

Until one is committed,
there is hesitancy,
the chance to draw back,
always ineffectiveness.
Concerning all acts
of initiative (and creation)
there is one elementary truth, the ignorance of which kills countless ideas and splendid plans.
that the moment
one definitely commits oneself,
then Providence moves too.
All sorts of things occur to help one that would never otherwise have occurred.
A whole stream of events
issues from the decision, raising in one's favor all manner of unforeseen incidents and meetings and material assistance, which no man could have dreamed would have come his way.
I have learned a deep respect for one of Goethe's couplets:

Whatever you can do,
or dream you can, begin it.
Boldness has genius,
power and magic in it.

A Sewanee day in seventy-one,
you came to us our first born son.

Time passed more quickly than we could know,
too soon we had to watch you go,

Sewanee called you back in eighty-nine,
To make you her own, one more in the line.
